Please describe your Agriculture and/or Extension needs and potential solution. *

The College of Human Sciences and the NDSU Extension Service have a long relationship, with Family and Community Wellness and Youth Development Specialists integrated into the academic programs of the College. The College is happy to support the Service's efforts in the area of workforce development, food security, and resiliency/mental health. These areas of emphasis critically impact our communities and our state, and Extension is in a unique place in their ability to work at both the local and the state level to address problem areas and help provide solutions. We stand ready to join our resources with theirs in these efforts.
